FORSYS
Forward Thinking

Case study

60% Boost in Sales Efficiency & 40% Decline in Sales Cycle Time With a Custom Salesforce Sales Cloud Solution For a Real Estate Company

Insight

A leading real estate company encountered several challenges, including manual processes, disorganized property management, and fragmented data, all of which hampered operations and customer experience.

Forsys leveraged the Salesforce Sales Cloud platform to transform the client's fragmented and manual operations into an automated system that streamlined not only property leasing but also sales workflows. With the implementation of a customized Salesforce Sales Cloud solution, the real estate firm successfully eliminated process bottlenecks, resulting in a 60% improvement in sales operations and a 40% reduction in sales cycle time, positioning them for long-term growth and success.

Industry
Real Estate

Revenue
$5M - $10M

Employees
201-500

Headquarters
Maharashtra, India

Business Challenge

Operational inefficiencies stood at the core of the client's struggles, with legacy technology and manual workflows impacting the ability to manage property rentals and track sales performance effectively. The absence of streamlined processes, along with inaccurate data management and reporting, caused barriers to the real estate company's operations & growth trajectory.

Their day-to-day operations were in shambles, hampering both internal team performance and customer interactions, caused by the below mentioned challenges:

- Lack of a structured system to monitor and evaluate sales team performance, leading to inconsistent sales service.
- Disorganized property rental process, creating challenges in managing interactions between property owners and leasing customers.
- Dependency on manual processes for handling sales operations, customer data, and property listing searches, reducing efficiency.
- Reliance on Excel sheets, emails, and Google documents for generating quotes (offer letters) and agreements, causing slow processes and frequent errors.
- Absence of a unified view of customer interactions and property performance due to fragmented data.

Transformation Journey

Forsys leveraged a detailed, multi-phased approach to fully understand the client's unique challenges and requirements. This included discovery with stakeholder engagement, assessment and gap analysis, data and process audit, solution blueprinting, and hypercare. Forsys followed a detailed, multi-phased approach to ensure that Aryan Properties' unique challenges were fully understood and addressed. This comprehensive process included discovery, assessment, implementation, and hypercare to guarantee long-term success.

Here are the key highlights:

- Implementation of tailored Salesforce Sales Cloud (Professional Edition) solution
- Standardization of sales processes (reporting and workflows) to ensure consistent service delivery and performance tracking.
- Automation of custom documentation (quotations and agreements) and sales reporting to reduce errors and achieve faster operations.
- Centralization of customer and property data for a unified view of interactions for enhanced relationship management
- Integration of analytics and dashboards for real-time tracking of property performance, customer interactions, & sales performance.
- Post-implementation user training and support for smooth adoption.

Impact

40% reduction in sales cycle time with streamlined processes leading to faster deal closures

60% improvement in sales operations through enhanced productivity with automated and unified workflows

40% increase in data accuracy and consistency resulting in reliable data for better decision-making and reporting

Enhanced decision-making with real-time sales data and analytics facilitating better strategic planning

Lowered administrative workload as reduced manual tasks allowed staff to focus on higher-value activities

Flexible document management with easier creation and management of critical documents

About the Client

The client is a top-rated real estate consultancy firm based in Mumbai, focusing primarily on leasing commercial and residential properties. Their vision is to provide cost-effective property options to both established and aspiring corporates, contributing to their progress, growth, and goals, ultimately driving economic growth.

Solution Components

Salesforce Sales Cloud - Professional Edition, Custom Offer Letter / Term Sheet Templates, Property Management, Customized Reports